

The Business & Professional men of Arkansas have circulated a petition for a state stock law and the proposal will be voted on in the November general election.

We had supposed the state-wide proposal enjoyed unanimous support but I hear a dissent — it's close by, and the state states his opposition plainly. In his lead editorial of Tuesday's issue of the Nashville News Editor Ed Graves says:

Admittedly, cattle are a hazard on a heavily traveled highway. There are secondary highways where cars move at a moderate 40 miles per hour and upon which not too many cattle roam. Too, there are some sections in Arkansas where open range is bread and butter to the all farmer.

This is true of our own county (Howard) in the North. One of the county now enjoys an open range while the stock law affects travelers along highways and out of Nashville.

In fact, the local laws fit our situation perfectly. Where traffic is heavy, the highway narrow, winding and unpaved, there is open range.

That open range is an absolute necessity where the 60-acre farmer tries to raise cattle. The farmer needs to market some cattle each year, because he can barely make a living out of his crops and timber.

Most of the county there (north Howard) is dominated by Dierks, number 1 coal holdings, and no stock law is defeated and the stock laws enforced, the county stock farmer is going to be hard-pressed.

Already we have seen our county population drop in two census counts.

A state-wide stock law would mean nothing other than thinning out our neighbors up there, and we would be burdened with useless legislation.

With a heavy population shift to the cities, beating down state legislation and retaining our own local control can be a difficult task. But local control of our livestock-highway problem seems best in Howard county.

Howard county. The Star says the Nashville News, and of course it directly opposes anything Hope Star has fought on livestock control and highway safety for more than 20 years.

admit the vast land holdings the Dierks company pose a special problem in Howard county, but the interests of no county can be placed above necessity, convenience, and safety, of the entire state.

Many years ago The Star successfully launched a campaign to enforce the local stock law in Hempstead county. I can tell Editor Graves it is a long, hard fight in any man's county — and will make enemies for you.

I recollect that once upon a time I was scheduled to make a school graduation speech in a certain Hempstead county community. There was a fresh outbreak of cattle-running on the highways just before graduation.

ack; I had something to say about it editorially — and the school committee was terribly harassed. I relieved their sense of mind by suggesting they somebody else to do the graduation honors — for there is no question where a newspaper man's duty lay.

local enforcement of a local law is always more difficult than enforcement of a measure with state-wide recognition. And a sin in lapse in enforcement can be forgiven. Only recently the wife of Texas college professor was right here on U. S. 67 when a family car collided with an animal.

What do you have to say to the family who lost a wife and child?

How can we push for high-speed roads, on the one hand, and out requiring, on the other, that fast-moving cars be granted right-of-way in the face of public safety?

This is a question of public policy which the people themselves will decide.

and they will get a chance to do so in November.

Another Task Force Enroute to Battle Zone

Pearl Harbor, June 28 — (P)—The navy moved swiftly today to put together a second hard-hitting Pacific task force to enforce stiffening American policy against Communist aggression in the Far East.

The existing Seventh task force immediately prepared to carry out President Truman's orders to defend Formosa, Chinese Nationalist stronghold, from Red invasion.

The 20-ship seventh, spearheaded by the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Valley Forge, was transferred to the operational command of General MacArthur, chief of all U. S. forces in the Far East.

Some of its units quickly sailed from Hong Kong, presumably for Formosan waters. The Valley Forge was in Hong Kong last week.

Pacific fleet headquarters said the 27,000-ton carrier Philippine Sea will be the nucleus for the new task force which will be based on Pearl harbor. Like the Valley Forge, she will carry the navy's potent new Gruman Panther jet fighters.

The Philippine Sea task force will include two cruisers, a squadron of destroyers and a full sea-rain of supply ships, to permit long-range missions possible if necessary.

A Pacific fleet spokesman said the new force, probably to be commanded by Rear Adm. Walter F. Boone, will closely support the Seventh fleet.

The Seventh's public information officer in Manila declined to say whether any ships of the fleet already had sailed for Formosan waters.

Hong Kong reports said, however, that three of four Seventh units there — the Destroyers Moore and Maddock and the Submarine Cabazon — sailed Tuesday. The destroyer Wantuck was reported the only Seventh flat ship remaining.

Asked where they were bound, one high American authority in Hong Kong replied: "Read your morning papers, that should give you an idea." This indicated Formosa.

British Place Fleet at U. S. Disposal

London, June 28 — (P)—Prime Minister Attlee announced today Britain has decided to place its naval forces in Japanese waters at the disposal of the United States to support American action in South Korea.

Attlee said the British naval forces were offered for immediate use. He made the announcement in the house of commons.

"I need scarcely say that the prime minister speaks for all parties in the house when he makes this announcement," Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition, declared.

"We shall do our best to give him any support he needs in what seems to me an inescapable duty."

Attlee said British forces around Japan "are almost the same as those of the U. S. naval forces."

The whole house cheered. The announcement came in response to Churchill's question "whether the naval forces we have on the spot are such as are necessary to make a substantial contribution, relative to American forces."

Attlee said it is "certain that this country will carry out its obligations to the United Nations."

He observed Britain is "already carrying a heavy burden in holding the line in southeast Asia," where British troops are engaged in fighting Communist-led guerrillas in Malaya.

He said the British cabinet feels that Russia will not intervene to touch off a global conflict because she definitely does not want war.

Asked how British commonwealth countries were chipping in to support U. S. action against the North Koreans, Attlee said:

Chicago Daily News, barely under the U. N. We have taken this action. Commonwealth countries are equally members of the U. N. and it is, of course, for them to decide what action they will take."

Camden, June 28 — (P)—J. H. Smedley, 54, retired Camden fire chief, died here yesterday. Survivors include his widow and a daughter, both of Camden; a brother, William S. Smedley of Pine Bluff.

Hope Station Preparing for Largest Crowd

The largest crowd in the twenty-two years history of the Station is expected according to Cecil M. Bittle, Assistant Director in Charge.

A timely program is planned to meet the needs of the farmer and business man in these changing conditions, stressing many new ideas and information found by the Station in recent years. Specialist in seven fields including irrigation, peaches, brambles, vegetables, forestry, kitchen and bathroom arrangement, and cotton insects, will be on hand to explain these topics.

A hearty welcome is extended by Mr. Bittle to all people in this section of Arkansas to be at the Station, Friday June 3 for White Study Day and July 1 for Colored Study Day, to meet with your neighbors for a day of information and entertainment.

Rev. Wm. B. Oglesby, Jr., Pastor Pulaski Heights Presbyterian Church, Little Rock will deliver his outstanding address on the spiritual values in Rural Life, "during the afternoon program for whites, June 3.

A special arranged musical entertainment program Friday that will delight the entire family. According to Mr. Bittle you will be disappointed if you miss this part of the days schedule.

Plate lunches will be served by the Hempstead County Home Demonstration Council Friday and by the Colored Agents Saturday. Bring your lunch if you like and enjoy it with your friends on the beautiful campus of your Experiment Station.

The morning program for Colored is the same as the Whites with a special program for the afternoon. Dr. M.B. Tolson from Langston University and Mrs. T.S. Kyle A.M. & N. College will deliver the addresses to the colored folks on Saturday.

Arkansans Support the President

Washington, June 28 — (P)—President Truman's stand in the Korean crisis has general backing of Arkansas members of congress.

Senator McClellan said he hoped the situation didn't mean war.

"If it does then we know that war would be inevitable," he added. "I am supporting the President in this crisis."

Senator Fulbright said that "from what I know of the situation the President took the only tenable position."

He added that the position wasn't particularly to his liking but "we are committed now and we must stick to it."

Rep. Tackett termed the President's action "the only thing left to do" under the circumstances.

But he recalled: "Less than a year ago I opposed aid to Korea and in a speech in the house I predicted that if we went ahead on the course which we took the very thing which has happened would happen."

Rep. Norrell said he believed the President had followed the correct procedure. Rep. Mills thought the situation in Korea was like that in Europe when Hitler remilitarized the Rhineland. He said a firm stand then might have prevented World War II.

VFW Elects Hope Man to State Office

Hot Springs, June 28 — (P)—The Arkansas department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, closed its annual convention here yesterday after electing Maurice Nichols, Monticello, as new commander.

Pine Bluff was designated as site of the 1951 convention.

Nichols was the only nominee for commander. He served as senior vice commander during the past year. W. L. Griffin, Heber Springs, is retiring commander.

Mrs. Ivan Mueller, Little Rock, was elected president of the women's auxiliary. She succeeds Mrs. Theadene Bogard, also of Little Rock.

Claude Sutton Undergoes Appendectomy

Sheriff Claude Sutton, a candidate for re-election, underwent an emergency appendectomy this morning in Julia Chester hospital. The operation was performed at 10 a.m.

Mr. Sutton was taken to the hospital last night. His condition was "as well as could be expected."

FBI Moves to Tighten U. S. Security

Washington, June 28 — (P)—President Truman's order for direct military aid against Communist aggression in Korea has put in action long laid plans for tightening up security inside the United States.

Internal security is the FBI's job. As usual, it moved without talking. But it is safe to say that an alert went out from Director J. Edgar Hoover's office within a few minutes after the President's announcement yesterday that a naval and naval support was moving in to help the South Koreans.

The FBI has worked for five years on the details of procedure for meeting such an emergency as this, or a worse one.

Its chief objective is to forestall any major act of sabotage, particularly in basic industries.

The keystone of the plan is made up of documented data on persons, and groups, who might be threats to internal security.

The FBI believes it has a pretty good line on such subversive elements. The bureau's files are bulging with dossiers on those described by Director Hoover as "the enemies within, who by their deeds demonstrate their future plans."

The alert involves additional surveillance, a redoubled watch in possible danger spots, and putting the bureau in a position to move quickly and effectively wherever the need may arise.

The FBI made 16,000 arrests of potentially dangerous persons after 1941's Pearl Harbor. It is a point of major pride in the bureau that enemy espionage was kept under control during World War II and that not a single successful act of enemy-directed sabotage occurred in the United States during the four years of the fighting.

Jap Students in U. S. Like American Campus Life But 'Sex Excesses' Bother Them

By SAUL PETT (For Hal Boyle)

New York, — (P)—Some 300 Japanese students in the United States were asked what they thought of American campus life.

Fine, they said. They like the universities, they like the teachers, they like the buildings and the social freedom between professor and student. Only one thing bothers them: Sex.

Many were outraged by "social excesses" between American male students and coeds.

One Japanese student complained that a "strong fragrance of sex filled the campus."

"Too much kissing and hugging in public," said another. "Their (American students') main conversation is only love affairs."

"Sex is very clear in this country," still another protested.

Others were upset by "petting" and "students' whose courtships are not pleasant to see."

However, a small all-male minority of the Japanese students were enough impressed to be willing to give American sex standards a cautious try. Asked what characteristics of American campus life might be transplanted to Japan, one boy wrote:

"Dates. I mean opportunities for young men to have free fellowship with girls and select their wives by themselves."

The poll taken at 163 different American schools and universities in 37 states by the Japan International Christian University Foundation, Inc. This is a group devoted to raising funds for a new university near Tokyo.

Most phases of college life here pleased the Japanese students. "If the world could be something like an American university,"

Laney Brands McMath a 'Fair Dealer'

Ben Laney brought his campaign for governor to Hope last night and some 3,500 persons gathered at the courthouse to hear him brand Sid McMath a Truman "Fair Dealer."

Mr. Laney was introduced by former Hope Mayor Albert Graves. Prior to his address county and district candidates spoke and the Hope High school band gave a concert.

Apparently encouraged by last week's defeat of a Truman "Fair Dealer" in North Carolina, Laney utilized every opportunity in his speech before Hempstead county voters to link the president's "liberal philosophy" with that of Governor McMath.

The former governor did not explain what he was doing. But he repeated the word "liberal" a dozen times when referring to McMath.

He expressed opposition to the Brannan plan for federal farm support, national health insurance, the proposed Fair Employment Practices Commission, anti-poll tax legislation and other measures presented by President Truman.

"The present governor, however, is playing around with the people who are demanding such laws," Laney said.

"I believe in progress. But I do not believe in being so liberal as to ignore the Arkansas constitution, like the present governor did in setting up a State Tax Commission to police the work of your county assessor."

That was about the extent of his critical remarks concerning McMath. In previous speeches Laney had attacked many of the governor's statements and actions. In outlining the speech earlier in the day, he said: "It will be a factual talk — a change of pace."

He spent most of his time explaining "what I have done and what I expect to do in the governor's office."

"Even though there are differences of opinion, and though in any campaign some extreme statements are made, I consider it important to tell where I stand and what I propose to do," Laney said.

"That's what the people want to know. I hope my opponent does the same thing."

Laney noted that Governor McMath had taken cognizance of the former governor's charge last night that McMath had permitted use of highway funds on private projects.

"The present governor asks why I do not name these projects," Laney said.

As Expected Russia Says U. S. Stand in East Asia Is Direct Aggression Act

Hopes Decision Means Peace in the World

Washington, June 28 — (P)—President Truman declared today the "unprovoked invasion" of Korea is an example of the danger communism presents to all undeveloped areas.

"We must and we shall give every possible assistance to people who are determined to maintain their independence," he said. "We must counteract the Communist weapon of fear."

The President addressed the annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild.

It was his second speech of the day which touched on Tuesday's momentous decision to use American planes and warships against the Communist invaders of Korea.

To the Reserve Officers association, he said earlier that "we face a serious situation" but expressed hope that the U. S. challenge to the onward march of communism will mean "peace in the world."

Much of address to the guild was concerned with his so-called point four program of American aid for the development of backward areas of the world.

He said the Communists are attempting to turn the "honest dissatisfaction" of peoples in undeveloped areas into support to Communists efforts to dominate their nation.

The reserve officers stood and cheered Mr. Truman when he addressed them at the Mayflower hotel this morning.

Smilingly acknowledging their demonstration, Mr. Truman then solemnly told men:

"We face a serious situation."

He went on to say he hopes his decision would serve the cause of our country and a peaceful world.

Before Mr. Truman spoke, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson described the Sunday night White House decision to send planes and warships to the aid of South Korea as "the finest hour in American history."

Johnson also told the reserve association that the national defense is stronger than ever before in our peacetime history.

Carrying out Mr. Truman's momentous decision, American planes already were in action in Korea.

From this country, an increasing volume of war materials was pouring into Pacific pipelines to strengthen the front against communism all along the line drawn by the President against Communist aggression.

Top officials here were following reports from Korea closely, but Mr. Truman had put his daily schedule largely back on the usual routine after three days devoted almost exclusively to the Far Pacific situation.

However, the President reserved a major spot on his afternoon conference schedule for a talk with W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the national resources security board.

That board has the duty of preparing details plans for civilian defense and industrial mobilization in time of war.

Mr. Truman's talk to the reserve association was off the cuff, without benefit of prepared manuscript.

In chatty vein, he spoke for several minutes without mention of Korea or the week end developments.

Stressing the importance of civilian as well as a military service, he said he has had difficulty in getting the right men to fill important posts in government.

Dardanelle Man Leaves Seoul Safely

Dardanelle, June 28 — (P)—Robert Meyers Berry, 33, of Dardanelle, has arrived safely at Tokyo from Seoul, Korea, he has advised his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Berry of Dardanelle.

The younger Berry is a vice consul at Seoul.

Mrs. Berry said she didn't know whether her son left before or after the invasion of Southern Korea by Northern Korea forces began.

Washington, June 28 — (P)—Senate crime investigators were told today that a boom is underway in counterfeiting, smuggling, narcotics peddling and illegal liquor traffic.

South Korea Armies Trying to Regroup

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Thursday, June 29 — (P)—South Korea's army, shattered and chewed by big Russian-made tanks of the northern invaders, struggled today to form a new line a score of miles south of their fallen capital of Seoul.

Seoul and its airfield at Kimpo, 16 miles west, fell to the communist invaders Wednesday after a see-saw struggle since the start of the Red onslaught Sunday.

Loss of Seoul and Kimpo, and concession that Inchon, Seoul's port 2 miles west, was probably untenable, were confirmed by the United States defense department in Washington.

The communists, betraying the completeness of their invasion preparations, quickly began broadcasting from Seoul. Introduced Lee Sun Yul, defense minister of the northern regime, said the new mayor of Seoul.

In the broadcast, Tokyo, Lee even ordered schools to reopen today.

Carrying out President Truman's orders for American air and naval support to the beleaguered South Korean forces, the U. S. Far East air forces announced its fighters and bombers effectively attacked North Korean positions northward road yards near Munhwa, 10 miles of Seoul on Wednesday.

A summary said troops, communications, truck convoys and roads northwest of Seoul, were bombed.

It said one American B-29 Superfortress and a B-26 light bomber were reported downed in the fighting by strafing of the Russian-made North Korean planes.

United States ground troops are not being employed, but general MacArthur sent a signal corps unit to set up a field headquarters somewhere in South Korea today.

O. H. P. King, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Suwon, 20 miles south of Seoul, that the defense forces were trying to reform a junction of Suwon under Gen. Choi Byung Duk, South Korean chief of staff.

King said the southerners still were falling back in order, but that they had been badly mauled by the northern tanks.

(The U. S. defense department identified these as 35-ton Russian-made T-34's, mounting 76 or 85 millimeter guns, and small 12-ton Russian-made T-70's.)

Suwon, according to Correspondent O. H. P. King, was jammed with civilians running away from the Reds approaching from the north. Korean army leaders tried to whip their badly chewed troops into a defense line around Suwon.

There are still large numbers of South Korean units north of Seoul, he said, who have been virtually cut off and isolated by the sudden advance of the Communists.

Seoul was in panic as the northern troops approached. Every road overflowed with fleeing people, lugging bundles of whatever they could gather.

The southern troops, in their haste to slow up the Red advance, blew up bridges south of Seoul, cutting off many who would have escaped.

Three American correspondents, Burton Crane of the New York Times, Frank Gibeay of Time magazine and Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News, barely escaped with their lives when a bridge over the Han river was blown. Scores of dead and injured littered the bridge.

North Korean tanks spearheaded the advance on Seoul. The Reds later broadcast from the capital that an important announcement would be forthcoming shortly.

Pilots returning from American bombing attacks on the northern invaders said from all appearances the capital was in their hands.

Landing at a southern Japanese airbase the pilots, some of whose planes were shot up by ground force machineguns, said they saw heavy fighting were able to determine how the battle was going.

There was no indication from General MacArthur's headquarters that the Red radio claim the fall of Seoul was true.

ney declared: "He really doesn't mean he wants me to do it. If he will ask me to name them I'll be happy to do so."

He made his first reference to McMath's opening address at Pine Bluff.

"He called our people the 'little men,'" Loney said. "I'd rather have the little man with me than a few of the big ones. In fact, I belong to that type of citizen known as the little man. I appreciate the kindness of the present governor in bringing it to the attention of the people."

"This country was built by the little man. It has been preserved by the little man. And this election will be carried by the little man."

"I admit I have no big bond men behind me. I'll be content to rest my case in the hands of the so-called little men of Arkansas who exercise sound judgment without a personal interest except in the general welfare of our people."

Ben Loney has tacked another label on the man he hopes to unseat as governor of Arkansas.

Last week the former governor referred to Governor McMath as "Traditional Sid" — but declared McMath was traditional only when it served his purpose to be.

In speeches Tuesday Loney used word "liberal" a dozen or more times in referring to McMath. And he used it in a manner to make it plain he didn't care much for the McMath brand of "liberalism."

He apparently was trying to tie McMath up with national proposals favored by President Truman and his advisors. He expressed opposition to the Brannan plan for federal farm support, a national health insurance, anti-polit tax legislation, the proposed fair employment practices commission and others. McMath has indicated his own opposition to at least some of the measures mentioned by Loney.

"The present governor, however, is playing around with the people who are demanding such laws," said Loney.

McMath, who's been mixing his campaigning with "non-political" appearances, contented himself Tuesday with a reiteration of his interest in Arkansas river development.

At Ozark the governor promised that his administration would continue a fight in behalf of a development project, which is designed to make the Arkansas navigable from Tulsa downstream and to add power and flood control facilities.

The project now is tied up waiting for a congressional appropriation.

"Chances of getting the money look slim now," McMath said, "but I believe the money can be gotten and this administration will continue to fight hard toward this end."

McMath made two speeches. One was at the annual business meeting of a rural electric cooperative; the other, at a meeting of the junior chamber of commerce and other civic groups.

Loney, who concluded Tuesday's stumping with a speech at Hope, was to make five appearances in South Arkansas Wednesday winding up with a speech at Magnolia Wednesday night.

MURDER LIQUIDATED

Copyright 1950 by Julius Long NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Ben Cobble, special investigator for State Attorney General Keever, has received $4000 in daily $1000 installments from an unknown source. Before he can decide just how to tell Keever about it, Keever receives an anonymous phone call telling him someone on his staff has accepted a large bribe. Keever calls Cobble into his office.

III
KEEVER had caught something in my expression that had almost given me away when he mentioned "large bribe." "This thing is a shock to me. Doesn't it shock you, boss?" I said, trying to pass it off.

"Naturally. I was quite stunned. My first inclination was to regard the call as a crank call, but the girl insisted that it was all too true. She knew positively that one of my men, a man in a key position and whom I trusted completely, had accepted bribes totaling $4000. The money had been paid in four installments of $1000 each. I demanded to know who the man was, and she said she didn't know. But she did claim to know that the money was still on him and that a shake-down would turn him up."

I drew a deep breath. "Going to frisk everybody, boss?"

Keever frowned. "I can't do that, Ben. The kids who do the leg work would probably have to like it, but they would hardly be likely suspects. This girl said the culprit was a man in a key position. There are about a dozen such men. I couldn't think of subjecting them to such a humiliation. Paul Waring, my first assistant, for example. If I even suggested such a thing to him, he would turn in his resignation instantly. And there's Bill Atkins, the second assistant. He's a fine lawyer who left a profitable practice to come with me."

It was true. Both Waring and Atkins were highly successful lawyers with personal fortunes so large that they could afford to leave private practice for the excitement of a government job.

seemed to have recovered from the "surprise and shock action" of Sunday's invasion and the front remains substantially unchanged.

All previous indications were that the Russian trained north Koreans had been hurried back from Seoul to Uijongbu, 12 miles to the north, and beyond.

MacArthur's summary said that the staying powers of both armies were "being put to the test."

On the high seas American naval forces maneuvered to counter any amphibious operation by the Communists. Their patrols covered Formosa, the Nationalist China coast.

Swift jets and light bombers were thrown into the battle on the orders of President Truman to save the young South Korean republic from being overrun the Russian-armed northern forces.

An earlier statement from headquarters said an undetermined number of these sky raiders from Japan had loosed 500-pound bombs on Communist targets in bombing and strafing mission. The jets car-for me to handle alone, though, I'll need help."

Keever frowned. "I can't ring in just anybody on this, Ben. I came to you because you're the one man in the outfit that I know won't sell me out." He colored and added quickly, "Naturally, you're loyal because you appreciate all I've done for you."

My mouth hung open. Wasn't I the guy who'd cracked his tough cases and put him right into the attorney general's office? But I said: "Thanks, boss, but there's one other guy in the joint that you can trust."

"You mean Preston Shelton? I suppose you're right. If you want him, take him. Only, for heaven's sake, make sure that he understands the importance of secrecy!"

"O.K. Now let's hear that recommendation of a couple more times."

I wanted to memorize the sound of the girl's voice. I was sure that no attempt had been made to disguise it.

SHELTON came into my office later. He sat down and propped his feet on some of the magazines on my desk. He is a good-looking kid, one of those clean-cut blond guys that need a ballbat to keep off the women. On top of that he is a strictly swell guy, and the only man in the joint that I'd trust farther than I could throw a bale of hay.

"Something up, Ben?"

"I'll say." I told him about Keever's anonymous phone call and my assignment to turn up the recipient of the four grand.

"Well, it's going to be like hunting for a needle in a haystack, finding out who has been accepting a bribe. Since we can't frisk anyone, it may take months. I doubt that we ever do find out who got the money!"

I laughed drily. "Oh, that's no problem at all. I already know who got the money!"

Shelton sat up straight. "You do? Who?"

"Me. Now, tuck your eyes back into their sockets, Shelton, and I'll tell you the whole story."

UN Security Council Backs U. S. Action

Lake Success, June 28—(AP)—The United Nations embarked upon an historic venture today by calling upon its members to use military force to back up a cease-fire order defied by Communist North Korea.

The decision was taken late last night by the Russian-boycotted security council, a few hours after President Truman announced the United States already was ordering planes and ships to support the invaded Republic of South Korea.

The vote was 7 to 1, the minimum number of affirmative votes required. India and Egypt asked to be recorded as not participating because they had not received instructions. Yugoslavia cast the negative vote.

The affirmative votes were cast by the United States, Britain, China, France, Cuba, Norway and Ecuador.

The council's action was momentous in several ways: 1—It gave its stamp of approval to Mr. Truman's bold plan of direct action to stop Communist aggression. This was the first time in its history that the council had authorized the military sanctions provided by the U. N. charter.

2—It was a clear warning to Russia, although Russia was not ry two of the 500-pounders on bombing missions.

The later summary made no further mention of aerial attacks. It noted that for the past 24 hours "the situation in Seoul has been fluid with movement on both sides."

An American informant said that the invaders had been thrown back to Uijongbu. He reported this information came from the South Korean army.

Uijongbu commands the valley down which the main Communist invasion force drove to Seoul. By most accounts the invaders twice reached Seoul and twice were thrown back.

The headquarters summary said the southerners "apparently are continuing a stiff resistance" in the vicinity of Kimpo airfield, 16 miles northwest of Seoul. The invaders previously were reported to have established a bridgehead on the south bank of the Han river near the airfield.

mentioned in the U. S. resolution, that the U. N. would not permit the seizure of countries by force. 3—It may have made the Russians angry enough that they will decide to make permanent their boycott which they started last Jan. 10 in protest over the presence of Chinese Nationalist delegates. The Russians have insisted they would not return until representatives of Red-China are seated.

Ann Wollerman Circle Meets in Archer Home

Mrs. E.L. Archer, Jr. was hostess to members of Ann Wollerman Circle of WMS of First Baptist church at 4 p.m. Monday. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. James Birkhead. A business session was conducted by Mrs. Royce Smith, circle chairman. Mrs. Birkhead read a letter from Ann Wollerman, missionary in Brazil.

The second chapter of the mission study book was reviewed by Mrs. Aaron Tollett. Mrs. Tollett gave a splendid review of "For Christ in China".

A dessert course was served to eight members, and one visitor Mrs. L.F. Higason.

DeAnn Lilac Club Meets in Clark Home

Miss Rena Clark was hostess to the DeAnn Lilac Club with Mrs. Noel O'Steen as co hostess.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Richard Arnold and minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Carlton Samuel.

Mrs. Carlton Samuel gave an inspiring devotional. The program was in charge of Mrs. Jessie Samuel who gave two chapters on "Flower Arrangements". The four basic principles design, scale, balance, and harmony, were discussed.

Mrs. Briant Roberts won the flower arrangement contest.

A delightful dessert course was served to 18 members, and one guest, Mrs. Alvin Willis of Hope. The meeting adjourned to meet in the home of Mrs. Richard Arnold with Mrs. Briant Roberts as co hostess.

E.P. Young, Jr. Honored At Stag Breakfast

Lloyd Kinard, E.P. Young, Sr. and Kinard Young were hosts at a stag breakfast at eight o'clock Wednesday morning at the Barlow Hotel honoring E. P. Young, Jr., bridegroom-elect of Kathryn Hatley.

Dark red petunias and shasta daisies in a black bowl graced the center of the table and on each end of the table were crystal bowls filled with the same flowers. A personal gift was presented to the honoree by the hosts.

The guest list included: E.P. Young, Jr.; Wallace Beene, Bill Routon, Lloyd Spencer, Roy Anderson, Tom McLarty, Reverend J. M. Hamilton, Reverend Steve Cook, Clyde Monts, Milton Dillard, Wesley Hart, Dr. F.D. Henry, John Hatley, Earl Kinard of Junction City, Robert Gibbs Reaves of Arkadelphia; Bill Drake and Rummel Young of Fort Smith; Luther Hollamon, Joe Jones, Franklin McLarty and the hosts.

Miss Kathryn Hatley Honored at Luncheon

Mrs. Kline Snyder, Mrs. Frank Trimble, Mrs. A.K. Holloway, and Mrs. L.W. Young entertained with a beautifully appointed luncheon at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday in the dining room of the Barlow Hotel complimenting bride-elect Kathryn Hatley.

The long table was beautifully decorated with a crystal centerpiece holding pink gardenias, feverfew, and sweet peas. This arrangement was flanked on each side by low bowls of the same flowers.

Miss Hatley was presented a corsage of pink gardenias by the hostesses.

Bridal place cards embossed with wedding bells marked places for 18 guests.

Hatley-Young Rehearsal Dinner in McLarty Home

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom McLarty was the scene of the rehearsal dinner for the Hatley-Young wedding party Tuesday evening. Guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. McLarty and were invited out to the patio where they were received by Miss Hatley and Mr. Young before dinner. Miss Hatley was lovely in a dress of luggage brown lace and she was presented a corsage of cinnamon roses and a silver tray by the hosts. At this time, Mr.

Elect Officers

Sheridan, June 28 —(P)—Chester Lee Young of Magnolia was elected president of the Arkansas State Baptist Young People here yesterday.

The annual convention of the organization is in session here.

Young presented the ladies with gardenia corsages and the men with boutonnières.

On the mantel in the living room was a lovely arrangement of white gladioli and gracing the bookcases on each side were vases of white daisies. A silver epergne filled with white tapers glowed in a silver candelabra placed on a table at the entrance door. On the piano in the music room was a silver vase of pink asters.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length, imported lace cloth, and a replica of the wedding scene centered the table. White velvet cord interspersed with white tapers formed the aisle for the miniature bride and groom, the story book dolls, which were dressed similarly and in the colors of the six bridesmaids, and the small china doll dressed as the flower girl.

Other guests were seated at small tables centered with silver and crystal epergnes filled with mixed spring flowers and a single taper.

A delightful three-course dinner was served to the following: The bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Hatley, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Young, Jr.; Mrs. Cora Staggs, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cook of Houston, Texas; Miss Mary Eberle of Warren; Miss Kate Sparks Bernis of Prescott; Miss Dorothy Smith, El Paso, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibbs Reaves and daughter, Kitty, of Arkadelphia; Joe Hurley, Camden; Bill Drake, Rummel Young of Fort Smith; Miss Annis Lick of Fort Smith; Miss Mary Jane Gray of Tiffin, Ohio; Mrs. Z. K. Thomas of Warren, Miss Marilyn Moore, Little Rock; Kinard Young, Mr. and Mrs. George Frazier, Miss Alice Lile, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Routon, Wallace Beene, and the hosts.

DOROTHY DIX Cost of Saving

Dear Miss Dix: We are a young couple who love each other and have been married about a year. Our aim is to invest what money we both have in a home, but to maintain one on the income we now have would mean rigid economy for both of us. We are willing to make these sacrifices except that my husband will not agree to give up his cigarettes. It makes me feel that I will be foolish to deprive myself of good clothes, waves, etc., and pinch the pennies while my husband throws away the quarters on smoking a habit which I regard as harmful and too expensive for him. I do not like to smoke, but I think I might as well acquire the habit, too, if he is going to waste money that way.

Answer: And I think that you had better throw away your money on any foolishness than to let it come between you and your husband and cause you to quarrel over one getting a nickel's worth more of pleasure than the other does. Believe me, children, there is no greater extravagance than throwing away love. That is what you are doing, and if you don't watch out, the first thing you know you will be taking the money you have hoarded penny by penny and buying a divorce with it. Allow For Some Pleasures

Every young couple should begin their married life by budgeting their income and saving some of it, but that does not mean that they must deny themselves every pleasure and indulgence and reduce life to nothing but a scraping together of pennies.

It is fine for you and your husband to desire a home and be willing to sacrifice to get it, but you can sacrifice more for it than it is worth. If he goes without his cigarettes to which he is accustomed and out of which he gets a harmless pleasure, he will be irritable and peevish and filled with a sense of resentment against you, and will probably wish he was single again so he could spend his money as he pleased. If you go shabby and your hair gets stringy for want of a wave in order that you may put a few more dollars in the savings account, you, too, will be fretful and hard to live with. Remember that we pass this way but once. We have only one life, one youth, one chance to be happy, and if we miss that we can never get it back again. So I think it is very foolish to deny yourself any innocent pleasure you can possibly have, or to without everything you want in order to have every possible cent for the future.

Be thrifty, but within reason. Save something, but not everything.

Dear Miss Dix: How can I teach my husband to be more kindly to people? How can I make him more friendly? He seems to delight in saying harsh and cutting things to every one with whom we come in contact and we are swiftly losing friends through his abrupt actions and conversation. I try to keep our home life running smoothly all the time by being sweet to him, to offset his harshness, but nothing is right with the world or with anybody for him. I have never heard a pleasant phrase about any person come from his lips. How can I change him?

Answer: I don't think you can change him any more than you could turn vinegar into honey. There are just natures so soured that nothing can sweeten them. No people are more to be pitied than these bitter misanthropes who see no beauty in God's world, no good in anything, who believe no man honest, no woman virtuous, no child innocent; who suspect every one of being animated by the basest motives; who do not trust even their own wives and children.

They miss all that is best in life because our real happiness comes through our affections, through the good will and love of those about us, and if we have none of that, we have nothing. They even handicap themselves in their careers, for to succeed we must have the help of others and they turn every man's hand against them.

We can only surmise that these surly and disagreeable people get

Two Bodies Recovered in River

Miami, Okla., June 27 — (AP) — Searchers have recovered the bodies of a man and a boy drowned in a triple tragedy Sunday on the Cowskin river. The bodies are those of Dale Kanackstedt, 27, of Miami, and Michael Fay, 8, of Lyons, Kan. Kanackstedt and Floyd Miller, 21, Elkins, Ark., perished in a futile effort to rescue the Fay boy who waded into water beyond his depth. Miller's body was recovered two hours after the triple tragedy. Grand lake patrolmen, highway troopers and firemen conducted a two-day search with boats and diving equipment before finding the two other bodies late last night.

Extremely hot or cold water, wringing or rubbing, and alkaline soaps are harmful to wool fabrics. A morbid pleasure out of hurting other people and taking the joy out of life for them. Their sport is intruding on the toes of innocent strangers; their most enjoyable amusement is in deflating the little pink balloons that make society pleasant, and they never have such a good time at a party as when they wreck it.

Dear Miss Dix: I am an ex-convict, desperately in love with a fine girl. I am afraid to tell her of my past life lest I lose her, yet I cannot bring myself to ask her to marry me without telling her. I have gone absolutely straight for the past seven years, but some people will never forget a kid's mistake.

Answer: Tell her. Give her a chance to decide whether her love for you is great enough to share your past as well as your future. That is only giving her a fair break. If you married her without her knowing of the stain on your life, you would be perfectly miserable, for you would live in fear of her finding out about it, as she undoubtedly would sooner or later. But if you start with a clean slate, everything will have been wiped out and there will be happiness and confidence between you.

One Beauty Contestant Breaks Arm

Helena, June 28 —(P)—Ann Staggs may or may not come Miss Arkansas — but will ever the outcome she's bound to be a favorite with the spectators. The 18-year-old Miss Batesville will have a brace supporting her left arm as she and 30 other Kansas beauties appear in the opening round tonight of the state which eventually will get one of them a chance at the Miss America title.

Miss Staggs fell at her Batesville home yesterday, the day before the Miss Arkansas pageant was to open here.

She suffered a broken left arm. A physician set the fracture, fixed her up with a brace to hold the broken bones in place, and sent her smiling on her way to Helena.

The talent she'll demonstrate singing so at least she won't have to do anything strenuous to danger the injury.

Miss Staggs and the other contestants will be divided into groups for tonight's first preliminary. One group will model evening suits and evening gowns, another will demonstrate their singing, dancing, playing a musical instrument or what have you. Tomorrow afternoon the girls are reversed. Tonight's models become performers; tonight's performers become models.

Ten selected from the original contenders compete in the finals tomorrow night. Five of these ten compete in the final also set for tomorrow night.

One of this five will be a Miss Arkansas, and compete in the Miss America contest in Atlantic City in September.

Governor McMath will be hand to crown Miss Arkansas.

Mineral Springs
in Victory Over Legion

The Mineral Springs Flyers rose up from seventh place to slam the Hope Legionaires a disheartening 7-6 loss, coming from behind to give Louis Carpenter a victory over the fourth placers last night in League play at Mineral Springs.

Hope pecked away at Carpenter for ten hits but the Arkansas Tul-lis Cook was strong in the clutches.
walked two in registering his third win against three losses. Denvil Ross, the loser, gave up six hits, struck out 2, and walked four.

It was his second defeat against three wins. Gilson Ross relieved him in the seventh win two on and none out. He tossed the rest of the way-giving up no runs.

In what appeared to have the makings of a brilliant pitchers duel, Hope scored first in the fourth on a 34 foot run by Gilson Ross.
The ball soared far over the left field wall for his first round tripper of the season.

Mineral Springs came right back in their half of the fourth to mom-entarily go out front 2-1. They garnered a brace of runs on three singles, a wild pitch and a base on balls. Hope bounced right back in the top of the fifth. The Legionaires scored two runs on two singles, and error and a wild pitch to shove ahead 3-2.

Bedlam broke loose in the sixth and the Flyers boomeranged ahead once more this time to stay.
Mineral Springs shelled Denvil
Ross for four runs on two doubles, as single, and three errors.

Hope kept pecking away at Carpenter in the top of the seventh as Jack Bell was safe on an error at first and went to second on a wild pitch. Bell scored on Floyd Matone's single. Mineral Springs was served up two bases on balls to open the bottom of the seventh.
Lonnie Bell sacrificed the runners to second and third. Sonnie Nutt scored from third as Hugh Peck grounded out second to first.

Hope had a big chance to pull the game out of the first in the top of the ninth. Bill Harris pulled a double off the wire fence in deep right center. Anderson popped to second and Riding struck out. Bob White parked a long double to score Harris. Gilson Ross, Hope cleanup man who had a great night at the plate, was given an intentional pass. Louis Carpenter then slipped a called strike past
Gunter to snuff out the rally.

The Legionaires take on the K.
C. Baking power team of Little Rock in Legion Field tonight, with er permitting.

French Trying to Form New Cabinet

Paris, June 27.—(AP)—Ex-premier Guy Mollet struggled today to form a new cabinet. War in East Asia added urgency to his efforts. Mollet expected to report on his progress to President Vincent Auriol later today after interviewing leaders of his own radical socialist party, former Premier Georges Bidault's popular republican movement (MRP), and the Socialists. Mollet insisted he must have the Socialists to share the responsibilities of power if he resumed the premiership. His earlier cabinet lasted 13 months.

The Socialists, third strongest party in the national assembly, were members of every cabinet after the liberation until last February.

They walked out of the Bidault government then when other parties refused to grant wage raises to low income workers. But they continued to support the MRP premier in parliament. Last Saturday they withdrew their support, because Bidault opposed wage increases for government workers. The cabinet was forced to quit.

An important section of the party led by Secretary-general Guy Mollet opposed participation

GOP to Try to Defeat Tax Bill

Washington, June 27.—(AP)—House debate opens today on the new tax bill, with Republicans driving to split it in half, so that votes may be taken on two separate bills.

One would slash levies by $1,010,000,000, on fur coats, jewelry, movies and scores of other items. The other would boost taxes on bit corporations by around $433,000,000, plug loopholes and make other tax law changes to gather new revenue for offsetting the loss from the excise reductions.

Republican strategy was drawn late yesterday at a mass meeting of the 171 GOP house members. The rally was held after Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, had assailed the measure supported by Democrats as "a phony tax relief bill, framed in political panic."

Democratic leaders set a vote on the one-package bill for Thursday. They were so confident of victory that they did not bother to count noses in advance.

The leaders hoped to toss the bill over to the senate and then let the house take a long Fourth of July weekend. Some voiced hope, too, that the senate will act in time for the excise cuts to become effective on September 1.

The one-package bill was drawn by the house ways and means committee, with the $433,000,000 levy on big corporations intended to avoid a veto.

Lake Guards Secret of Plane Wreck

St. Joseph, Mo. June 27.—(AP)—Lake Michigan, the silent grave of many sailing ships, still guarded well today its secret of the Northwest Airlines plane disaster.

On the second full day of search for evidence there was a strong likelihood that the cause of the nation's worst airline calamity might never be known.

Fifty-eight persons were killed when the DC-4, flying non-stop from New York to Minneapolis, crashed in the lake during a storm early Saturday. Additional bits of wreckage were picked up by the coast guard from an area 19 miles west of here yesterday.

A child's rag doll, a torn picture of a woman, shirts and sweaters, and some chunks of human flesh were found along with twisted pieces of wood and metal.

Most generally accepted was a theory that the big plane hit a line squall along the eastern shore and flew to pieces upon striking the water.

Joseph E. Kimm, NWA's chief pilot, said he did not believe the plane was struck by lightning or otherwise exploded in flight. Plane particles recovered from the water showed no traces of fire, he said.

Kimm said he believed the plane hit the water with such terrific impact that it disintegrated.

In a new coalition regime. They feel that non-participation will strengthen their position in a competition with the communists for labor votes in the parliamentary elections due not later than next year.

The anti-Communist parties differ also on the domestic issues of finances, the election laws and Catholic schools.

Explains U. S. Interest in Korea

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 28.—(AP)—How did we come to get mixed up in Korea in the first place. This will explain.

Korea, with its 8,000 square miles, is about the size of Utah. It sits out from the northeast coast of Asia, almost touching Japan.

Korea now is divided into two Koreas: North and South. The dividing line, very important in this story, is the 38th parallel of latitude.

North of the line, where the population is about 10,000,000 Koreans, is the Communist-run, Russian-sponsored government called "the Democratic People's Republic of Korea."

South of the 38th parallel, and backed by the U. S., is the republic of Korea. Its population is about 20,000,000 Koreans.

South Korea is largely agricultural. Most of the industry is in the north. So both Koreas need each other but haven't been able to get together peacefully.

This is not the first time the United States has had a hand in Korea's fate.

In 1907, after Russia had lost its war with Japan, those two nations signed their treaty of peace at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

President Theodore Roosevelt assured the Japanese this country would look upon it favorably if the Japanese took control over Korea, which at the time was all one Korea and had its own government.

The Japanese took control, abused and despoiled the Koreans, and in 1910 just made Korea part of Japan. In 1919 some Korean patriots asked the Japanese to let Korea have its independence back.

They were slaughtered. But other Korean patriots, outside Korea, set up a temporary government-in-exile. They elected Dr. Syngman Rhee, president. He had studied at Princeton university under Woodrow Wilson.

Then World War II. In 1943—at a Cairo conference with other leaders of the allies—President Franklin D. Roosevelt agreed that when Japan was licked the Koreans should have their independence again.

In 1945, when the war was coming to an end, there were Japanese troops in Korea but neither Russia nor American troops. Russian troops were on Korea's northern border. American troops were no closer than Okinawa, 600 miles away.

If the war suddenly ended, the Russians could rush down, and take over all of Korea. Then, state department people explain, this is what happened:

The heads of the U. S. army, navy and state department figured out a plan. When the war ended, Russians would come into Korea from the north and accept the surrender of all Japanese forces north of the 38th parallel and occupy the country there; American troops would enter from the south, accept the surrender of Japanese troops south of the 38th parallel, and occupy the country there.

The Japanese offered to surrender Aug. 10, 1945. The Russians entered Korea Aug. 12. The Americans didn't arrive until Sept. 18.

There have been statements that this splitting of Korea between Americans and Russians at the 38th parallel was agreed to by President Roosevelt in his Yalta conference with Marshal Stalin.

(State department people say this is untrue, that President Roosevelt, who died four months before the Japanese surrender, had nothing to do with it.)

The Russians threw up a barrier at the 38th parallel between North and South Korea. A commission of Americans and Russians sat down to talk about wiping out this barrier.

This got nowhere. The problem was taken to the United Nations. Meanwhile, Russian troops occupied North Korea, American troops occupied South Korea. The Russians would let neither the Americans nor U. N. officials into North Korea.

Finally, the U. N. decided to let the Koreans set up their own government, as promised at Cairo, by holding their own elections. Since the U. N. people couldn't get into the North, the elections were held in the South.

The southern republic began life on Aug. 15, 1948. On Sept. 9, 1948, the Russians established the northern republic. Finally both Russia and the U. S. announced they had withdrawn all their occupying troops from Korea. The U. S. left behind, it said, 500 officers and men to train the southern Koreans.

The North and South remained apart, with the Communist-run North pecking away at the South. Finally, this week it attacked the South. But the U. S. had promised to help Korea if trouble started. Yesterday President Truman sent help.

This government has spent about $525,000,000 in South Korea to help get it on its feet. The army spent $380,000,000 and left behind $56,000,000 in equipment. The U. S. Marshall plan this past year spent $90,000,000 there and proposed spending another $100,000,000 next year.

Farm Bureau Meet

Little Rock June 27.—(AP)—The fourth annual officers and leaders conference of the Arkansas farm bureau federation will be held July 19-21 at the University of Arkansas Fayetteville.

Federation president Joe C. Hardin said delegations from each of the 75 county farm bureaus in the state are expected to attend.

Knives with wooden handles should be washed carefully and never allowed to soak. Soaking sometimes loosens the handles.
